

NATIONAL SECURITY COLLEGE PRESENTS:

ANU PUBLIC LECTURE SERIES

COMMUNITY RESILIENCE & NATIONAL SECURITY: An Agenda for the Future

The Honourable Robert McClelland MP
Attorney-General

Tuesday 13 July 2010, 5.30pm-6.30pm

Law Theatre, Building 5, Fellows Road, ANU

Registrations are required

Please register by 9 July 2010 to:

E: National.Security.College@anu.edu.au or T: 02 6125 6131

There is an increasing intersection of domestic and international issues in national security policymaking.

The Attorney-General, The Hon Robert McClelland MP, will discuss what makes Australia resilient to short-term shocks and longer term challenges. His address will cover a range of important issues for Australia's future resilience, including changing societal patterns, risks posed to social cohesion, infrastructure threats, cyber security, serious and organised crime, and contingency planning for national disasters and pandemics.

Following this lecture, Professor Michael L'Estrange, the Director of the National Security College, will moderate a question and answer session on the topic.

This lecture is free and open to the public.

The National Security College is a joint initiative of the Commonwealth of Australia and The Australian National University.

Please note there is limited availability of parking at ANU and guests should consider alternative forms of transport or allow sufficient time to find appropriate parking. For a map of the ANU campus visit <http://campusmap.anu.edu.au>. To join the ANU Public Lectures mailing list and to listen to selected podcasts, visit www.anu.edu.au/publiclectures

The views expressed in this lecture are those of the presenter and do not necessarily represent the views of The Australian National University. Printed on recycled paper.

CRICOS# 00120C

NATIONAL SECURITY COLLEGE

MO_10189